

Unknown

From: Sarah Palin [govpalin@yahoo.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 03, 2007 6:43 AM
To: 'Sarah Palin'; 'mike_tibbles@gov.state.ak.us'; 'Frank Bailey'; 'John Bitney'; Perry; Kristina Y (GOV)
Cc: Lloyd; Denby S (DFG); 'fek9wnr@yahoo.com'
Subject: Re: Fwd: Taylor_Made[1]

never mind about the "anonymous" email sender... Todd forwarded this from the home computer in Wasilla... this message was composed by Steve Florey in Anchorage, evidently, and passed around.

Denby - : Redacted

Sarah Palin <govpalin@yahoo.com> wrote:

Mike or Frank - does anyone know how anyone could send an anonymous email from my old personal account (spalin@mtaonline.net) that I don't even use anymore... I did NOT send this email.

Also, Mike(s), : Redacted

sarah <spalin@mtaonline.net> wrote:

From: "sarah" <spalin@mtaonline.net>
To: "sarah palin" <spalin@mtaonline.net>
CC: "John W. Bitney" <Subject: Taylor_Made[1]
Date: Sat, 3 Mar 2007 05:50:57 -0900

Denby's Game Guy – "Taylor-made" for a Wildlife Disaster

- Mr. Taylor's ultimate claim to fame was his intense personal satisfaction with his important role in moving Canadian wolves into Yellowstone National Park.
- At a conference in Homer with Deborah Williams' group (now known as the Alaska Conservation Voters), Mr. Taylor recounted his efforts to aid the restoration of wolves to Yellowstone National Park including the line, "I cried when the wolves were released at Yellowstone". Very progressive, Ken! Now every hunter in the whole country is crying over this unmitigated disaster.
- Mr. Taylor, an active liberal, was an enthusiastic supporter and campaigner for Democrat Fran Ulmer's unsuccessful run for governor.
- In Fairbanks, from about '85 to '91 (or so) he had dismal performance. His penchant for playing golf and chasing "the good life" sent him on the National and International meetings circuit to the point that the Fairbanks staff referred to him as "The Vacancy Factor".

ROSTON 00032

10/14/2009

- Mr. Taylor's tenure at Region III in Fairbanks followed a stint as one of the worst area biologist's in corporate memory. He was assigned in Dillingham (Mulchatna Caribou herd, etc.) where he distinguished himself by never having any data for the Board (or probably the Region) on population dynamics or changes. He virtually sat in the chair and accomplished nothing.
- As the management coordinator in cahoots with Chris Smith (ultra greenie and "anti" sympathizer), he made sure Bob Stevenson, one of arguably the best five wolf biologists in the world was taken out as the Department's wolf expert and re-assigned as an area biologist. The new wolf guy was a much better "yes" man.
- Taylor was "responsible" for decisions during the Department's GMU 20A wolf control efforts and could have easily avoided the confrontation with Gordon Haber, which put Gordie on the evening news after the Dept. muffed efficiently killing a wolf in a snare with the cameras rolling.
- In the 1990s, Taylor worked for some time as the Deputy Director of the Division of Wildlife Conservation under his CSU college buddy and longtime friend Wayne Reglin. Among his notable achievements, he can be credited (at least in part) with the Department's disastrous wolf sterilization program.
- He was later appointed Director of Habitat under Tony Knowles and was at the helm during the time they really got into trouble. There were eyewitness accounts of Habitat staffers throwing pizza parties to celebrate their victories in shutting down commercial/industrial endeavors. Murkowski subsequently moved Habitat to DNR to neutralize the Division's radical environmental gang's ability to stifle industry/development.
- Throughout his career, Taylor was uniformly known as a worthless supervisor by those he supervised, except for the habitat folks whom he let do anything the regional Habitat Supervisor wanted to do.

Be a PS3 game guru.

Get your game face on with the latest PS3 news and previews at Yahoo! Games.

Everyone is raving about the all-new Yahoo! Mail beta.

ROSTON 00033

10/14/2009