MESSAGE:

Dear Govenor Palin,

I'm sure you are receiving thousands of congradulations on the birth of your new son, and I would like to add mine to it. As we are the same age, and herald from the "Oh Mickey Your So Fine" era, I also want to add thanks for being such a great role model for us 40 something women and moms. As I was browsing the web yesterday, I ran across a picture of you and your family. You were obviously attending some politcal function, the caption didn't say. It was you, your husband, and your three daughters. I had to stop and smile. Your youngest daughter had a beautiful red dress, white tights, black shoes, and a crown on. If you ever doubt that your job is making you less of a mother, just have a look at that picture. Any mother that would let her little girl be a princess not matter what the occasion, has nothing to worry about in the motherhood department. I'm a mother of twin 6 year olds, and didn't need to actually buy clothing from age 3 1/2 to 5. That's when their Sleeping Beauty and Tinkerbell dresses finally wore out.

You are doing a great job, and you've given me a great female role model. I'm an aspiring writer, and I just may put you in one of my books. Keep up the good work, and congradulations to your whole family.

Jackie Humphreys
